About Amhara Association of America (AAA)

The Amhara Association of America (AAA) is a non-profit civic organization located in Charlotte, North Carolina that investigates and documents human rights atrocities and repression against Amharas in Ethiopia. AAA seeks to inform U.S. policymakers, international human rights organizations, media, and all Ethiopian stakeholders to pressure Ethiopian leaders to change laws, policies, and practices in Ethiopia so perpetrators are held accountable and victims receive justice. AAA also collaborates with Amhara organizations in the U.S., supports independent Amhara organizations in Ethiopia, and provides humanitarian aid for Amharas impacted due to targeted ethnic attacks. AAA's funding comes directly from members and supporters; the organization is not affiliated with any Ethiopian or American political or governmental entities.

1 Introduction

1.1 Background

Mai-Kadra (also transliterated May Cadera) is home to 45,000 residents of Amhara, Tigrayan, and other ethnic backgrounds. On November 4th, 2020, Tigray regional government forces attacked the Ethiopian National Defense Force (ENDF). One week later, on November 12th, an Amnesty International investigation revealed witness reports detailing how forces associated with the Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF) had gone on a rampage in the small town three days earlier.

In the days leading up to November 9th, 2020, TPLF supporters were celebrating in the streets of Mai-Kadra chanting “we are the winners, we are winners”. Meanwhile an ENDF coalition, including Amhara Special Forces, were advancing to Mai-Kadra. It was reported this development likely caused TPLF collaborators to, together with local security officials, massacre ethnic Amhara civilians in a premeditated, coordinated attack. To date it is very difficult to know the exact number of casualties. Citing witnesses, first respondents, and survivors, the Ethiopian Human Rights Commission \(EHRC\) estimated at least 600 civilians were killed. They did note the death toll was likely to be higher, however they could not verify this supposition. Local officials declared the death toll to be more than 1,300 civilians. While the Amhara Association of America (AAA) has been able to verify in its own investigation that there were at least 1,515.

1.2 Methodology

This investigative report prepared by the AAA involved first-hand data collection and witness interviews by a team of investigators on the ground in Ethiopia. When launching this investigation, AAA initially met with local administrators to obtain permission for data collection. The team also employed the services of security personnel to ensure the safety and security of survivors and data collectors. The team primarily utilized ‘snowball’ methods of data collection (i.e., reaching survivors through their relatives and similar victims).

Interviewers were able to gather first-hand information by going to massacre hotspots and interviewing residents. After concluding the first interviews, the team asked where to find other individuals affected by the massacre. This method was repeated until the team felt they had completed the investigation. A total of 21 women who lost their husbands in the attack participated in the data collection process.

After being granted permission, the team used an audio and video recorder to capture responses from interviewees. As all the interviewers are native Amharic speakers, interviews were conducted in Amharic. Based on interviews, as well as direct and indirect evidence collected, a 30-minute [English subtitled] film was produced documenting the witness and survivor testimonies.

AAA is cognizant there have been allegations of reprisal killings against ethnic Tigrayans in the aftermath of the Mai-Kadra massacre. This investigation does not cover this allegation as AAA expects the joint EHRC–United Nations investigation to shed light on these allegations.

2 The Massacre: Planning and Execution

The massacre in the town of Mai-Kadra is not a new occurrence for the wider region but what set apart the recent massacre was its staggering death toll, especially that it happened in such a short time frame. For context, the wider territory collectively known as Welkait<sup>1</sup> was part of a series of territories forcibly occupied by the TPLF, a rebel group founded on separatist principles and which in their 1976 manifesto labeled the Amhara people as their enemy. After a fierce civil war and rebel struggle, the TPLF came to lead Ethiopia’s ruling coalition between 1991-2018. When the TPLF came to power they eventually enacted a new constitution in 1995 and incorporated several territories into their home region of Tigray including Welkait to the West, and territories collectively known as Raya<sup>2</sup> to the southeast. Historical evidence suggests since at least the 1980s, the residents of Welkait (predominantly ethnic Amhara and followers of the Orthodox Christian faith) faced targeted killings, discrimination, and overall apartheid for their Amhara identity in favor of local Tigrayan residents, many of which were resettled after TPLF took control of the territory. For example, a local security official by the name of Arage Dessie attested that as of 2015, communication in the Amharic language had been prohibited by the local administration, then part of the Tigray regional government (i.e., TPLF). The discriminative practices extended to local priests and clerics of the church who had ceased using Amharic during church processions. Another change was to deny farmers the right to own rifles for self-defense. In the Welkait area, gun ownership was prohibited specifically to the area's ethnic Amhara populace but not to the Tigrayan populace. This policy proved deadly for the Amhara residents in cases such as the recent massacre as they were rendered defenseless in the face of armed assailants affiliated to the TPLF. The perpetrators were organized in two different groups: Samri<sup>3</sup> and Hawzen<sup>4</sup> collectively known as Adwa<sup>5</sup>. They were well-trained and well-paid, having reportedly received 3,000 ETB per day while planning the logistics of their attack. Their training included techniques on how to identify ethnic Amharas, and how to kill their targets<sup>6</sup>.

One local resident, Mebrat Birhanu, elaborated on one such method of identifying the town's ethnic Amharas. Around noon on November 9th, 2020, on the pretext of establishing whether individuals had a Mobile SIM Card from Sudan (the town of Mai-Kadra is close to the northern Ethiopian-Sudan border), the militiamen went about the town checking the ID card of residents. This ruse allowed them to identify their targets. Later, at around 4:00 PM,

<sup>4</sup>A group of people who came from Hawzen (specific place) in Tigray region and organized in Mai-Kadra to massacre ethnic Amhara civilians

<sup>5</sup>The name Adwa derived from a specific place in Tigray and used as a collective name of Samri and Hawzen in the Massacre process

they returned to the residences they had found to be home to Amharas. The militia began brutally slaughtering ethnic Amharas, taunting them in the process by calling them Adgi<sup>7</sup>, meaning “donkey” in Tigrigna (language of the Tigrayan people). Another resident, Alubel Wubet, further clarified that:

“Tegaru<sup>8</sup> call Amhara “adgie”. I don’t know their reason to say this. I know it is simply their animosity for this ethnic group.”<sup>9</sup>

All survivors believe that the preparation for the massacre was made for more than a week. The official reason given was the ENDF and its allied forces “are advancing to the town and it is not safe to exit”<sup>10</sup>. One of the residents recalled:

“They prohibited Amharas from leaving the town. They encircled the city on November 3rd, 2020, and let only individuals with permits from the local officials enter the city but no one would exit from the city.”<sup>11</sup>

Once exit was prohibited, the Samri and Hawzen groups went on to ethnically profile Amharas. Multiple interviewees stated that the effort of profiling Amharas was supported by local administrators and involved many Tigrayan residents. One resident stated that “the Keble leaders were heavily involved in drafting the document with names of targets. Even non-militia women were working with the administrators to make the list.”<sup>12</sup>

Profiling of Amharas by name started on November 8th but was speed up the next day because ENDF and Amhara militia were reported to be making advances. One resident recall:

“They came to our house on November 8th, 2020, and asked my husband to register everyone who lived there. On November 9th, 2020, all Amharas were instructed

<sup>9</sup>Interview with Alubel Wubet, May 13, 2021. The residents of Mai-Kadra often heard Samri and Hawzen groups insulting ethnic Amhara. In the wake of anti-government protests which erupted in 2016 across the country, routinely insulting and demonizing Amharas became increasingly common in the Welkait area to close their businesses and return home. That made it much easier for them to target specifically Amharas.” <sup>13</sup>

To make sure all Amharas come to their houses, residents were told that “there will be a heavy air strike from the ENDF” on November 9th, 2020, and that “they must close their doors and stay home” <sup>14</sup>. Tigrayans were organized and arranged in groups containing 1 to 19 people per group <sup>15</sup>. Many of the survivors said the training and organization was performed at a location they referred to as “central”, located near the town. They also said that a local militia head [Colonel Yemane] was the main trainer while local Tigrayan TPLF-affiliated investors provided transport service to trainees. The training had focused on “on how to properly use knives, axes, machetes, and other sharp materials.” <sup>16</sup>

However, what survivors say the most devastating element of the preparation for the massacre was the active participation of religious person in planning and executing the massacre. One of the ways religious people were involved is collecting cash that survivors believe was used to finance the massacre. One resident stated:

“Priests who are originally from Tigray were the main cash collectors in the community. They said ‘Tigrayan Special Forces are the ones keeping us from harm. They are sacrificing themselves for our peace and security therefore you have to contribute financially to them’. Priests Melese, Hailemariam, and Gebrie were assigned to collect money in our neighborhood. Later the money collected through those “priests” were likely used to finance the massacre.” <sup>17</sup>

While most of the perpetrators used silent weapons, armed Tigrayan security forces were also there to cover for anything that could happen. Misganaw Gebayehu, a 28-year-old survivor said:

“One of my ethnic Tigrayan neighbors was in battle against the federal government before November 9th and came back to his home on November 9th. He came to our house and stood with his weapon in his hand. He came to help his friends while killing Amhara’s. They struck anyone standing with knives and machetes. I tried to run but they grabbed me. I did not remember what happened after that, but I found myself in Gondar for treatment. I learned later that I had lost consciousness for two days.”<sup>18</sup>

The perpetrators committed the massacre focusing on “the area named Ginb sefer, because it was an area of the town with a lot of Amhara residents”, multiple interviewees said that “discrete weapons like knives, axes, or machetes” were used and people who tried to escape

by running from their homes were “shot with guns by perpetrators standing by the main routes for this purpose.”<sup>19</sup>

Some Tigrayans aided the perpetrators by identifying the hiding places of ethnic Amharas. A family member of one of the victims, Ayenew Mulat, stated:

“We were living in a house rented from a Tigrayan woman. Her son, who recently returned from the war, was inside his mother’s home in the same compound. When the killers reached our compound and passed by our home, her son came out and identified us to them. The killers then drilled our door with different instruments while we were shouting inside. When they understood that it was difficult to open the door, they called the gunmen. Since the home was made up of corrugated iron and could not protect us from bullets, we decided to open the door and beg them not to kill [him] but we were not lucky.”<sup>20</sup>

By the end of the TPLF massacre operation, at least 1,515 Amharas were killed. AAA received more names of victims that we were not able to verify but we believe the death toll to be higher.

3 Mourning and still unheeded plea for accountability

The devastated community members held mass burial of Amhara victims. One of the Amharas that participated in the burial told AAA:

“I was a member of the committee that was responsible for the Mai-Kadra massacre burial. After the doctors arrived, we examined the corpses and buried them all. We had finished the funeral on November 14th, 2020. I signed and buried 625 people on my land alone. After the Ethiopian National Defense Force entered Mai-Kadra on November 10th, 2020, we resumed our search of the area, leaving the dead bodies as they laid as they could not be lifted. As the search for victims continued and more dead bodies were unearthed, the number of victims rose to 1,300. When the healthcare workers and the physicians arrived from Addis Ababa, I told them where the corpses were, and we removed 23 bodies from just one pothole.”<sup>21</sup>

Natural to its behavior, TPLF denied the massacre while diaspora Tigrayan activists used photographs and stories from this incident to advance their “Tigray Genocide” narrative which arose as early as November 4th, 2020 (i.e., at the outbreak of the War) , nearly a week before the massacre. This attempt to deny the massacre and the lack of accountability continues to cause pain in the Amhara community in Mai-Kadra:

“Right now, the Tigrayans abroad and in Tigray region are reporting that Tigrayans were the massacred people. The people who would say this are cruel and shameless people. Several media outlets visited us and saw what really happened to us at the hands of the TPLF affiliated group, but they did not report it to the international community. They have seen the mass graves. We do not know the reason behind this [lack of proper coverage and reporting].”

A year later, community members continue to plea for justice. One survivor stated:

“Recently the government of Ethiopia finally decided to label TPLF as a terrorist group, one good step for us, but more must be done. What they have done for the last 30 years while in power in Ethiopia is full of blatant abuse of human rights. Amharas and Ethiopians at large are proud people, they seldomly ask for international assistance. Our goal now is to hear what kind of progress is happening regarding catching the Mai-Kadra perpetrators and bringing them to justice. Especially those like Yemane who is now in Sudan. They took all their resources and now have opened shops in Sudan. They also took 200-300 vehicles to Sudan. They wear Sudan military uniforms and kill innocent Amhara farmers in the border area.”<sup>22</sup>

4 Conclusion

The Mai-Kadra massacre is a dark stain on Ethiopia's collective conscience. The farm town of Mai-Kadra is home to peoples from an amalgamation of backgrounds who come to work as laborers on farms owned by TPLF affiliates and of Tigrayan descent. Some of the residents have no family in the area as they have traveled from other parts of Ethiopia in search of better opportunities. Some of these laborers get married and start a family after arriving in Mai-Kadra. Therefore, many dead bodies were left unclaimed for days until their burial by town volunteers.

The exact number of victims is unknown. Some of the injured victims left the city to get help from their family. Some others were buried without being identified. Some are still suffering because of the shortage of food and other basic human needs. The international community paid little attention to the Mai-Kadra massacre and failed to provide significant aid to the victims. Some victims explained that some of the perpetrators are still living in the town, but no one is holding them accountable. The community's victims urgently need justice. The survivors are in dire need of immediate support. Most of them have lost their fathers, husbands, and bread winners. Most women along with the elderly are left with kids they cannot support. AAA recommends the international community including the US should launch an investigation and help the survivors lead a healthy and productive life. The reader should be mindful that this report is not exhaustive but is rather intended to bring attention and awareness to what transpired in this brutal massacre.

During the 27 years of TPLF dominance <sup>23</sup>, many Amharas were evicted from their lands in the area, with those who resisted being summarily executed. They have survived by being employed alongside members of other ethnic groups, as seasonal farm laborers. With the rainy season approaching, resources including land to raise a family, should be distributed to the ethnic Amharas of the region. This is the least that can be done to rectify the economic disenfranchisement that has been experienced by the Amharas while under the former regional administration.
